

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An image processing apparatus for generating data to be used for image processing, in which the image processing apparatus includes, a dividing unit dividing code data of a compressed image into a plurality of segments, a code size computing unit computing a code size corresponding to each of the plurality of segments, and a memory unit storing the corresponding relation between the code size and each of the plurality of segments.